Translated by Abū al-Ḥasan Mālik al-Akhḍar
“To me, reading the Şahîhayn (of al-Bukhârî and Muslim) is the sweetest pleasure in the world. When I open Bukhârî and read: ‘Abd Allâh b. Yûsuf narrated to us: Mâlik narrated to us...’ or I read Imâm Muslim say: ‘Yahyâ b. Yahyâ narrated to us...’ I forget all the concerns of the dunya (world) and its problems.”

Translate's Foreword

"Where is Mālik?" the Shaykh called out. I was sitting near the middle of the muṣallā among hundreds of other students in the Ṣaḥḥ al-Bukhārī class after 'Asr. I raised my hand. "I'm here, O Shaykh." "Stand!" he said. I put down my notebook and stood up preparing myself for the Shaykh's question. He paused for a moment and smiled. "How many narrators named Wakī' can be found in Taqīb al-Tahdhib? I thought hard, but could only recall one name. "Wakī' ibn al-Jarrāh," I said, and looked up. "Is he alone?" he said. I shook my head, uncertain. "There are three: Wakī' ibn al-Jarrāḥ, Wakī' ibn 'Udus, and Wakī' ibnMuḥriz. Sit!" he said. The benefits of this method of teaching—questions and answers—are widely known, and anyone even remotely familiar with our Shaykh is well aware that this was his way. He would constantly quiz the students, and not only during the lessons. Whether sitting at lunch, walking through the wādi (valley), or standing by the road, the Shaykh would question those he encountered on almost any subject: ḥadīth, the names and lineages of narrators, fiqh, ‘Aqīdah, Arabic language, history, etc.

This is just one example of the Shaykh’s desire to follow the Sunnah, for this, too, was the teaching etiquette of Allah’s Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم). Al-‘Allāmah Muḥammad b. Ṣāliḥ al-‘Uthaymīn mentions that the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) used this method to gain the listener’s attention and to make him ponder his answer carefully. It also helps to plant the answers firmly in the respondent’s mind. For close to eighteen years later, I have never forgotten that there are three people named Wākī’ in Taqrīb al-Tahdhib. And some years after leaving Dammāj, there came another question and answer I have not forgotten.

We were informed that our Shaykh was in California receiving treatment for a liver ailment, so we traveled to see him. When I entered his hospital room, after greeting him, I said in Arabic: “May Allah heal you completely, O Shaykh.” He replied: “Ameen.” He then asked: “What is the ʿIrāb (grammatical inflection) of that supplication?” Knowledge was indeed paramount to our Shaykh, and even in the days of his sickness, it remained his focus.

Recently, I was invited to give a series of lectures on the life of our Shaykh in Pittsburgh, PA. I thought it would be most beneficial to read to the students from his autobiography, as I remembered how it strengthened my resolve to seek knowledge many years ago. It was my hope that hearing of the Shaykh’s experiences in his own words would have the same profound effect on the listeners as it once had on me. In this book, the Shaykh chronicles his tribe’s history, his first efforts at seeking knowledge, his travels to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia—where he studied in the Islamic University of Madinah and sat with some of the greatest scholars of the day—and, finally, his homecoming to Dammāj to establish his masjid and center. From that center, Dār al-Ḥadīth, the Salafi call would spread to every region of his land, and beyond.
This moving account touches upon the tremendous life of the noble scholar of Islam, the Muḥaddith of the land of Yemen, our Shaykh, Abū ʿAbd al-Raḥmān, Muqbil b. Hādī al-Wādiʿī. I pray to Allah that it benefits and inspires all who read it. May Allah have mercy on its author, and grant him the highest reaches of Paradise.

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY

HIS LETTER IS FROM Muqbil b. Hādī b. Wādiʾī, to his brother for the Sake of Allah, al-Shaykh, al-ʿAllāmah, the historian, the noble beloved,
Muḥammad b. ʿAlī al-Kūʾ. Al-Salām alaykum wa
Raḥmatullah wa Barakātuhu.
After greetings: Welcome to you and your valued letter!
By Allah, more than one person has requested from me [to write my life story], but I declined due to my many preoccupations, and my dislike of publicizing it.
However, Shaykh Muḥammad, whose discourse is sweeter than honey, has a place of love in my heart, so I could not refuse him.

I am from Wādiʾah, east of Saʿdah from the valley of Dammāj; and you—may Allah preserve you—have described this valley in one of your commentaries—I believe it was in ʿIfah Jazīrah al-ʿArab—and its gardens, trees, and vegetation with that which suffices, and perhaps Allah will make it easy for you to visit the students of knowledge in Dammāj, and you will see, Allah willing, that which will delight you.

I am Muqbil b. Hādī b. Muqbil b. Qāʿidah al-Hamdānī, al-Wādiʿī, al-Khallālī, from the tribe of Ālī Rāshid. Our elders say that the Wādiʿah are from Bakīl; however, you, may Allah preserve you, are more knowledgeable of lineage than me and others, because this is your field of study, in which you have no rival among contemporary [scholars].

The Wādiʿah Tribe

The Wādiʿah can be found throughout the different areas of Yemen, but most them, as far as I know, live in the district of Saʿdah. They reside in Dammāj, east of Saʿdah, and in Saḥwah above Dammāj beneath the mountain of Barāsh; and in al-Darb, Āli Hajjaj, and al-Tulūl between the south of Saʿdah and its east. North of Saʿdah, they dwell in al-Zūr, Āli Naʿīl, and Āli Riṣās, and al-Razamāt, in the valley of Nushūr, and in Ḥāshid, west of al-Sanʿāniyyah. The Wādiʿah are called “Ḥāshid” because they live in the areas of Ḥāshid.
And there are Wādī′ah who live in Najrān at the top of Najrān Valley, as well as in Ṣahrān South. One year, a group of our tribesmen passed through al-Qarārah Center, north of Ṣahrān, and when they handed their passports over to the authorities there, they called out their names. They said: “Whoever is Wādi′ī, stand to the side.” So they did so, and said to themselves, “What do they want from us?” So when [the authorities] finished calling out the names, the soldiers shook their hands and said, “We are from the Wādi′ah of Ṣahrān, and it is a must that we invite you to be our guests.” So our companions promised to visit them upon their return from Hajj, if Allah willed. On their way back, they visited them; and [the Wādi′ah of Ṣahrān] hosted them and were extremely generous to them. They yearned to get to know the Wādi′ah of Sa′dah, as it is considered the [tribe’s] origin.

And the Wādi′ah are like other Yemenī tribes who were not given proper religious instruction, but from them there are a good group of about forty youth who constantly attend the lessons. We will mention some of them, Allah willing, in the list of students.
And indeed I praise Allah, for most of the Wādi’ah who live next to Sa’dah defend me and defend the da’wah; some in defense of the Religion, and some in defense of tribal zealotry, and if it were not for Allah first and foremost, then them, the enemies of the [Salafī] da’wah, the Shi’ites in particular, would not have allowed any trace or sign of us to remain.

I will now mention some of [my tribe’s] stances for which I pray Allah will reward them with good. One instance was when I faced severe opposition in al-Hādi Mosque, due to me diverting people from the [Shi’ite] call in [the masjid]. The men of Wādi’ah and others stood with me, until Allāh rescued me at their hands. The Shi’ite desired to do away with me. This was during the time of President Ibrāhīm al-Ḥamdī. The people of evil from the communists and the Shi’ites raised their heads, and they imprisoned me for eleven days during the month of Ramaḍān. Some nights in the prison around fifty youth would visit me; and on some nights, around one-hundred and fifty men from the Wādi’ah would enter upon the [prison] authorities, annoying them, until they released us from the prison, and all praise is for Allah. Another such instance is when the enemies of the [Salafi] da'wah would sometimes come to Dammāj with weapons, and the people of Dammāj would drive them out in humiliation. Another example is during journeys; if I said “We wish to travel,” they would vie with one another—may Allah preserve them—to see who would accompany me and guard me, and on some trips, perhaps we would travel in around fifteen vehicles.

In these days, the da'wah was progressing in the best of manners because, praise be to Allah, I had grown in age, perhaps reaching the age of sixty-two. So it was the experiences and advices from those who love the da'wah that drove me to have gentleness and not keep up with enemies, who have nothing but curses and insults.

"Show forgiveness, enjoin what is good, and turn away from the foolish (i.e. don't punish them)" [al-'Arāf 7:199].
[And Allah says]:

\text{عليكمُ ﷺ لَا تَنْعَفَ ﺍٰﻟْبَيْلَاءِنَّ} \]

“Peace be to you. We seek not the ignorant” [al-Qaṣaṣ 28:55].

Moreover, busying myself with teaching, writing, and propagating [the da’wah] did not leave me any time to follow them up. So let them say what they will, for my sins are many, and perhaps [because of their insults] they will lighten my burden and shoulder my offenses.

And how excellent is the saying: “Allah has not left anyone from his creation unharmed, not even His Prophet of Guidance, so how about me?”
MY TEACHERS AND STUDIES

I studied from the [school's] texts until I completed the curriculum. Then Allah willed that some time passed without me seeking knowledge, as there was no one there to encourage me or to aid me in that. I used to love to seek knowledge, and went to study in al-Hādī Mosque⁶, but I was not given support. Then, after some time, I traveled to the land of al-Ḥaramayn (The Two Sacred Mosques) and Najd. I would listen to the preachers, and their exhortations amazed me. So I sought the advice of some of the preachers concerning beneficial books to buy, and they directed me to Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī, Bulūgh al-Marām, Riyāḍ al-Ṣalihīn, and Fath al-Majīd Sharḥ Kitāb al-Tawḥīd. They also gave me copies of the materials for the Tawḥīd courses. I was a guard in a building in [the neighborhood of] al-Ḥujūn in Makkah, and I engaged myself with those books, and they stuck in my mind, because the practice of my country contradicted what I found in them, most specifically Fath al-Majid.

And after some time, I returned to my land, rejecting everything that I saw that opposed what I found in those books, including sacrificing [animals] for other than Allah, the building of mausoleums over the graves, and supplicating to the dead. This reached the Shi'ite, and they repudiated what I was upon, one of them stating: “Whoever changes his religion kill him.” And another one sent a letter to my relatives saying: “If you do not prevent him [from doing this], we will lock him up.” After this, they decided to allow me to enter al-Hādi Mosque so that I could study with them, with the purpose of removing these doubtful matters that had clung to my heart. And some of them repeated the statement of the poet: “Desire came to me before I knew of it. So it encountered an empty heart and took hold.”

Thereafter, I began studying with them in al-Hādi Mosque, and the headmaster was the judge Muţahhir Hanash. I studied al-‘Aqd al-Thamīn and al-Thalāthīn al-Mas‘alah and its explanation by Ḥābis. One of our teachers there was Muḥammad b. Ḥasan al-
Mutamayyiz. Once, we were studying the issue of \textit{al-Ru’yah} (seeing Allah in the afterlife), and he began to ridicule Ibn al-Khuzaymah and others from the 	extit{Imāms} of the people of Sunnah. I concealed my creed; unable to put my right hand on my left hand in prayer, I placed them at my side. We studied \textit{Matn al-Azhār} up to the book of \textit{al-Nikāh} (marriage) and the explanation of \textit{al-Farā‘id}, a large tome that was above our level, so I did not benefit from it.

When I saw that the school’s texts were not beneficial, save \textit{al-Nahw} (grammar), I settled on studying \textit{al-Ājurrūmiyyah} and \textit{Qaṭar al-Nadā}. I then asked the judge Qāsim b. Yahyā Shuwayl to teach me \textit{Bulūgh al-Marām}. We started; however, [the Shi‘ite] objected to this, so we abandoned [the lessons]. Seeing that the course texts were Shi‘ite and Mu‘tazilite, I decided to focus on grammar and studied \textit{Qaṭar al-Nadā} a number of times with Ismā‘īl Ḥaţbah—may Allah have mercy upon him—in the masjid in which I lived and in which he prayed, and he used to show the greatest concern for us. At that time, Muḥammad b. Ḥūriyyah came to the \textit{masjid}, and I advised him to leave off astrology. Consequently, he advised [those over the masjid] to expel me. But some of them interceded on my behalf, and he remained quiet. Some of the Shi‘ite used to pass by us while we were studying Qaṭar [al-Nadā] and say that my studies would not do me any good, but I would remain quiet and benefit in al-Nahw (grammar).

This continued until the revolution\(^{12}\), and we left the country, settling in Najrān. I studied with Abū al-Ḥusayn Majd al-Dīn al-Mu‘ayyid and benefited from him, specifically in the Arabic language. I remained in Najrān for about two years, and when I was certain that the war between the Republic and the King’s government was over worldly matters, I decided to travel to al-Ḥaramayn (Land of the Two Sacred Mosques) and Najd, and I stayed in Najd for close to a month and half in the institute of Qur’anic memorization, under al-Shaykh Muḥammad b. Sinān al-Ḥadā‘ī—may Allah preserve him. He was very generous to me, due to what he saw from my benefit, and advised me to continue until he could send me to the Islamic University, but the conditions changed for me in Riyāḍ, and I decided to travel to Makkah. I would work—if I could find work—and would seek knowledge at night, attending the lessons of Shaykh Yaḥyá b. ʿUthmān al-Pakistānī in Tafsīr Ibn Kathīr, [Ṣaḥīḥ] al-Bukhārī, and [Ṣaḥīḥ] Muslim. I studied the different works and met the two noble Shaykhs from the scholars of Yemen: The first was al-Qādī Yaḥyá al-Ashwal, with whom I studied Subul al-Salām by al-Ṣanʿānī. In addition to this, he would teach me whatever I asked of him. The second was al-Shaykh ʿAbd al-Razzāq al-Shāḥidhī al-Maḥwītī, and he, too, would teach me whatever I requested.

Thereafter, the Maḥad al-Ḥaram al-Makki (Institute of the Ḥaram in Makkah) opened, and I applied to take the exam with a group of students of knowledge, and passed—all praise is due to Allah.

From the most distinguished of our teachers there was Shaykh ʿAbd al-ʿAzīz al-Subayyil. I also studied along with a group of students from the institute under Shaykh ʿAbd Allah b. Muḥammad b. Ṣumayd—may Allah have mercy upon him—in al-Tuhfah al-Saniyyah after ʿIshā prayer in the Ḥaram. He would bring beneficial points from Sharḥ Ibn ʿAqīl and other works. This was above the level of my classmates, so they...
slipped away, and he abandoned the lesson—may Allah have mercy upon him. And I studied some things in al-Farāʿid (laws of inheritance) along with a group of students under Shaykh Muḥammad al-Subayyil—may Allah preserve him.

After settling in at the institute, I went to get my family from Najrān and brought them to live in Makkah during my six years of study at the institute, where the lessons were held in the Ḥaram itself. And the blessing of studying in the masājid is well-known. Do not even ask about the comfort and friendly atmosphere we experienced. The Messenger [of Allah] (صلى الله عليه وسلم) spoke truthfully when he said: “No group of people gather in one of the houses of Allah to recite the Book of Allah and to study it together except that tranquility descends upon them, angels surround them, mercy engulfs them, and Allah mentions them to those who are with Him.”

During the day, we studied in the institute. Every lesson serving the [correct] creed and Religion. From ‘Asr prayer until after ‘Ishā, we drank Zamzam of which the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: “Indeed, it is a drink that satiates, and a cure for ailment."17 And we would listen to the preachers who had come from all over the country to perform Ḥajj or ‘Umrah (the lesser pilgrimage).

One of the teachers in the Haram between Maghrib and ‘Ishá was Shaykh ‘Abd al-‘Azíz b. Ráshid al-Najdî, author of Taysír al-Wahyayn fī al-Iqtiṣār alá al-Ṣaḥīḥayn. He committed errors in the book with which we did not agree. He would say, May Allah have mercy upon him, that the authentic narrations that are not collected in the Ṣaḥīḥayn [of al-Bukhārî and Muslim] could be counted upon one's fingers. I continued to reject this statement of his until I decided to write al-Ṣaḥīḥ al-Musnad mimmá laysa fī al-Ṣaḥīḥayn, and I was assured of the invalidity of his speech, may Allah have mercy upon him.

And he was—may Allah bestow His mercy upon him—a man of Tawhîd, and possessed strong knowledge of the science of Ḥadîth: its authentic from its inauthentic, its sound from its defective. His rejection of al-Taqlîd (blind following) amazed me, to the point of him authoring the treatise entitled al-Tawâghît al-
Muqanna‘ah. Some of the people of knowledge said: “Did you intend us and the authorities [in this treatise]?” He said: “If you feel that what is mentioned in the book describes you, then it includes you. If you do not, then it does not include you.” Subsequently, the book was banned from entering the Kingdom. One night, he was asked to give a lesson, and perhaps it was a test. He began his lesson with the Statement of Allah:

آبَيْنِيُّ الْيَوْمَ مَا أُنْزِلَ إِلَيْكَ مِنْ رَبِّكَ لَا تَتَّبَعُوا مِنْ دُونِهِ أُولِيَاءَةً فَلَيْكَ مَا تَدْرِكُونَ نَّٰزِلَتُونَ

“Follow that which has been revealed to you from your Lord, and do not follow other than Him any Awliya. Little do you remember” [al-A’rāf 7:3].

He went on to cite several verses that evince the prohibition of blind following, and some of the noble scholars were present. Afterward, he was barred from teaching in the Haram, and Allah’s aid is sought.
And from my teachers who I benefitted from in the Ḥaram in Makkah was al-Shaykh Muḥammad b. ʿAbd Allah al-Sumālī. I attended his lessons for close to seven months or more, and he was—may Allah have mercy upon him—an ayah (marvel) as it relates to knowledge of the narrators of the two Shaykhs (al-Bukhārī and Muslim), and I benefited from him immensely in the science of Ḥadīth. Praise be to my Lord, from the beginning of my studies, I only loved the knowledge of the Book and Sunnah.

After completion of the intermediary and secondary levels of the Ḥaram’s institute, exclusively in religious studies, we moved to al-Madinah, to the Islamic University. Most of us transferred to the College of Daʿwah wa Usūl al-Dīn (Propagation and Fundamentals of the Religion). From the most distinguished of our teachers there were the two Egyptians, Shaykh al-Sayyid Muḥammad al-Ḥakīm and Shaykh Maḥmūd ʿAbd al-Wahhāb Fāʿīd.

When summer vacation came, I was afraid of wasting time, so I applied to the College of Sharīʿah (Legislative Studies) for two reasons: 1) to increase in knowledge, and 2) the lessons were very similar, some of them identical, so it was considered a review of what we had already taken in the College of Da’wah. Praise be to Allah, I finished both colleges, and was awarded a dual degree. However, Allah be praised, I do not concern myself with degrees. In my view, what deserves recognition is knowledge.

In the year I finished the two colleges, the university established an advanced studies program; what they call a masters [degree]. So I applied for the interview, and all praise is due to Allah, I passed. [The degree] was a specialization in the science of Ḥadith, and praise be to Allah, I benefitted from that which I love. From the most prominent of our teachers there were Shaykh Muḥammad al-Amīn al-Miṣrī, may Allah have mercy upon him, and Shaykh Muḥammad al-Ḥakīm al-Miṣrī, and towards the end of the program, al-Shaykh Ḥammād al-Anṣārī. Some nights, I would attend Shaykh ‘Abd al-Azīz b. Bāz’s Ṣaḥīḥ Muslim lesson in the Ḥaram. I also attended some of Shaykh al-Albānī’s private sittings with the students of knowledge to benefit.
When I was in the Ḥaram in Makkah, I would teach some of the students of knowledge Qaṭar al-Nadā and al-Tuhfah al-Sanniyah. In Madinah, I taught some of my brothers al-Tuhfah al-Sanniyah in the Ḥaram, and promised some of my brothers for the Sake of Allah to teach them from Jāmi' al-Tirmidhī, Qaṭar al-Nadā, and al-Bā'ith al-Ḥathīth in my home after 'Asr prayer.

From Madinah, the da'wah spread far and wide, filling the dunya in a period of six years. Some of the people of good supported [the call] financially, and Muqbil b. Hādī and some of his brothers [in Islam] are the ones who took up the task of teaching their brethren. As for the da'wah trips to every part of the Kingdom, it was a joint effort between all the brothers: the students of knowledge, so they could increase their learning and benefit others, and the common folk so that they could learn. Due to this, many of the common folk benefited and began to love the da'wah.

One of our brothers from the students was the imām of a masjid in Riyāḍ, and some of the people of knowledge censured him for taking a sutrah. He said: “We are unable to convince you. By Allah, only a common person could stand and teach you the ahādīth of the sūrah. So he called one of the common brothers from those who love the da’wah, who had memorized the narrations related to the sūrah from al-Lu’ Lu’ wa al-Marjān fīmā Ittāfaqā ‘alayhi al-Shaykhān. He stood and began to relate those narrations. After this, those who had previously opposed him were ashamed and fell silent. Following this, the blind followers and evil scholars began to stir, and the reason for this rousing of the blind followers, who were considered scholars in the eyes of the people, was that when [these blind followers] encountered one of our small students, and [the blind followers] cited a ḥadīth, the [small student] would ask them: “Who collected it?” This was something they were not accustomed to. Then [the small student] would ask them: “What is the condition of the ḥadīth?” They were not accustomed to this either. So they were embarrassed in front of the common folk. Sometimes the student would say to them: “This narration is not authentic. So-and-so and so-and-so is in the chain of transmission, and so-and-so has graded it weak.” Thus, the earth narrowed in on them [notwithstanding] its vastness. They began to [falsely] spread that these [students] were from the Khawārij; except the brothers were not from the Khawārij, those who make the blood of the Muslims lawful and excommunicate them from Islam due to sin. Nevertheless, errors occurred from some of the new brothers, because often the beginner has excessive zeal.

At that time, I was studying for my master’s thesis, and one night, before I knew it, I was arrested along with about one-hundred and fifty other people. Some escaped. The earth shook between those who supported us and those who did not. We remained in the prison for close to a month and half. After this, we were set free. Thereafter, there appeared some treatises from Juhaymān⁹, and a group of us were arrested. During the interrogation, they said to me: “You wrote [these treatises]. Juhaymān is unable to write.” I disavowed this [allegation], and Allah knows that I did not write them, nor did I help write them. After being imprisoned for three months, the edict was given for the foreigners to be deported.
When I arrived in Yemen, I returned to my village and remained there teaching the children the Qur'an. I felt as if the dunya was assailing me; it was as if I was out to destroy the country, Religion, and the rulership. At the time, I did not know anyone in authority or any tribal leader. I would say: “Allah is sufficient for me, and the best of protectors.” When things became difficult, I traveled to San'a or to Ḥāshid or to Dhimmār, and likewise to Ta’z, Ib, and al-Ḥudaydah for da’wah or to visit my brothers for the Sake of Allah.

Days later, one of the people of good sent my library from Madinah. They sought five-hundred Saudi Riyals from him at Markaz Kadam. However, he refused, believing it was a bribe. But he was unaware that it was a bribe as it relates to them. As for him, it was not a bribe, because bribery is that which is given to validate a wrong or to invalidate a right.

Some of our companions went to get the books, and [the official] told them: “Allah willing, come back after the Zuhr prayer. But after Zuhr, they discovered that the Shi‘ites had mobilized and asked the authorities not to release them, because they were "Wahhabi" books.²⁰ And do not ask about the fines, hardships, and injustices I suffered. Many of the brothers from my land exerted great efforts in following up on that, including Shaykh ‘Abd Allah b. Ḥusayn al-Āḥmar and Shaykh Hazā’ Dab‘ān, and those who were responsible for the Office of Counseling and Guidance, from them the judge Yahyá al-Fasayyal, may Allah bestow Mercy upon him, and the brother ‘Ā‘id b. ‘Alī Mismār. So after long difficulties, the people of Sa‘dah sent a telegram to President ‘Alī b. ‘Abd Allah b. Šāliḥ, and he turned the matter over to the judge ‘Alī al-Samān. He sent me a letter promising that he would release the books, and said: “Indeed, the people of Sa’dah are harsh. They make takfīr of the scholars of San‘ā.” It was decreed that when the books arrived in San‘ā that the judge ‘Alī al-Samān was abroad. So the brothers went to the head of the Ministry of Endowments [concerning the matter], and he said to them: “The books need to be inspected.” So some of our brothers in Islam went to the Office of Counseling and Guidance, and they went to retrieve the books. They said: “This is our domain. We will inspect them. Whatever is satisfactory, we will give them to al-Wādiʾī, and whatever violates the Religion, we will confiscate.” And since they knew that the books were purely religious, they gave them to us without inspection. May Allah reward them with good. So I took [the books] home, and all praise is for Allah. My relatives then built a small library and masjid, may Allah reward them with good. They said: “We will pray here to prevent issues and problems.” On some occasions, we would pray there with only around six people present.

At that time, the governor Hādī al-Hashishī called upon me, so I went to Shaykh Qāʾid Majlī, may Allah bestow Mercy upon him, and he called [the governor]. “What do you want with al-Wādiʾī?” he said.

“Only to make his acquaintance,” the governor said.

“We will go up to see him at his institute,” Shaykh Qāʾid said.

In another instance, someone else from the authorities asked for me. So Ḥusayn b. Qāʾid Majlī entered with me, and he spoke about the Shiʿite. He explained to him that we call to the Book [of Allah] and the Sunnah, and that the Shi’ite resent us because of this, fearing that their true reality will be made known. So the person in authority said: “Indeed, the Shi’ite have blackened the history of Yemen, and as long as your da’wah is as you have mentioned, then call to it, and we are with you.” After this, I remained in my library and after only a few short days, some Egyptian brothers arrived and began lessons from the books of Ḥadīth and Arabic language. Students continued to come from Egypt, Kuwait, al-Ḥaramayn and Najd, from Aden, Ḥadarah-Mawt, Algeria, Libya, Somalia, Belgium, and from many of the Islamic lands and non-Islamic lands.

Presently, the number of the students is between six-hundred and seven-hundred, among which are around one-hundred and seventy families. Allah provides for them from His Bounty. None of this is from our own might or power, nor from any abundance of knowledge we possess, nor from our bravery or eloquence in speech; instead, it is something Allah decreed, and all praise is due to Him Who has granted us this.
OUR classes:

1. Tafsīr Ibn Kathīr after al-‘Zuhr
2. Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī after al-‘Asr
3. Ṣaḥīḥ Muslim followed by Mustadrak al-Ḥākim between Maghrib and ‘Ishā'
4. Al- Ṣaḥīḥ al-Musnad mimma laysa fī al- Ṣaḥīḥayn before al-‘Zuhr
5. Al- Ṣaḥīḥ al-Musnad min Dalā‘il al-Nubuwwah
6. Al-Jāmi‘ al- Ṣaḥīḥ fī al-Qadr
7. Previously, I was teaching Sharḥ Ibn ‘Aqīl, but fell ill and had to leave it.

As for our brothers [in Islam], they establish lessons for their brothers in all areas of study, per the level of the students, in al-Tawḥīd, ‘Aqīdah (creed), Fiqh and its fundamentals, Ḥadīth and its fundamentals, al-Farā‘īd (laws of inheritance), grammar, handwriting, dictation, and everything the student needs from the religious sciences. When the masjid and living quarters become overcrowded, the lessons take place in the valley under the trees: beneficial knowledge and a pleasant atmosphere, and the Favor is from Allah alone.
One of Shaykh Muqbil’s old rooms

The Shaykh’s masjid in Dammaj

He was an unsheathed sword against the people of falsehood, from the Rāfidis, communists, Sūfis, and deviant sects. He established the Salafī call in the best of manners, and founded a scholarly Salafī school he named Dār al-Ḥadīth, attended by students from all over Yemen—nay, from various nations, Arab and Islamic, European and American...He was a beautiful example for [his students], that upright, modest, ascetic, mountain, Muqbil b. Hādī al-Wādi‘ī who reminds us of the biographies of the Salaf, most specifically Imām Aḥmad.”

At the end of Shaykh Muqbil’s biography, Shaykh Rabî’ states: “Indeed, I knew this man for truthfulness, sincerity, modesty, abstinence from worldly things, the correct creed, the sound Salafī methodology, and reversion to the truth at the hands of the young or old. Allah blessed his da’wah; thus, the people favored it. He and his students were a great influence on the people of Yemen. This is witnessed by every person of intellect, religion, and justice.”

 Shortly after Shaykh Muqbil’s death, al-‘Allāmah Rabî’ b. Hādī stated in some advice to the people of Yemen: “We express our condolences concerning the flagbearer of the Sunnah and Tawḥīd, that caller to Allah, the reviver in the land of Yemen, in truth. The effects of his call reached many regions of the earth. I say to you what I hold to be true, that your land, after the best generations, came to know the Sunnah and the Salafī Methodology at different times and with varying strength. With that said, I do not know of a period that equals this one, in which Allah blessed you and the people of Yemen, at the hands of this righteous man, the muḥaddith, the zāhid (ascetic), the pious, who stomped the dunya and its adornments beneath his feet.”

The muḥaddith, imām Muḥammad Naṣir al-Dīn al-Albānī stated: “As for al-Shaykh Muqbil, the people of Makkah are more knowledgeable of its mountains, and the reports that you have brought us [concerning him] are the greatest testimony that Allah has granted him success; and perhaps he is without equal among the contemporary callers throughout the earth.”

The imām, al-faqīh, ‘Abd al-Azīz Ibn Bāz was asked by a person from Yemen: “Where should I go to seek knowledge?” The Shaykh replied: “Go to Shaykh Muqbil.”

Shaykh Muqbil related: “At that time, a person had fled to Riyāḍ, he went to Shaykh Bin Bāz and said: ‘O Shaykh, I am from the people of Sunnah; however, I do not have any documents.’ The Shaykh said: ‘Prove to me that you are from the people of the Sunnah.’ The man took out a piece of paper with a reference from me. Upon that, the Shaykh wrote a letter for him with which he could travel.”

The imām, al-‘Allāmah Muḥammad b. Ṣāliḥ al-‘Uthaymīn stated: “Indeed, I hold Shaykh Muqbil to be an Imām.”

The imām, al-‘Allāmah Aḥmad b. Yaḥyā al-Najmī stated: “Praise be to Allah for His Divine Decree. This necessitates patience, since every person will die. However, whoever leaves behind the likes of this is not considered dead, since he established [the call], reformed, propagated, and exerted himself in an admirable fashion. We regard him as being from the noble upright people; this is how we regard him, and Allah will take account of us all. Nevertheless, we see all of this with our eyes and perceive it with our senses. We know, praise be to Allah, that he did much good. Few have achieved what he has. And these centers spread throughout Yemen are nothing but a goodness from his good works—rather, a portion of his good deeds…”
The noble Shaykh, al-ʿAllāmah Ṣāliḥ al-Fawzān said: “Yes, Shaykh Muqbil, may Allah grant him Mercy, studied here in this country, in the Islamic University. He learned al-Tawḥīd and went to Yemen. He called to Allah and to Tawḥīd. His daʿwah is upon good from what I have heard, and as far as [what can be seen] from the fruits of that call. May Allah have Mercy upon him.”
APPENDIX II

SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY OF THE SHAYKH’S WORKS

Tafsīr:

1. A verification and examination of the chains of narration in [Tafsīr] Ibn Kathīr up to Sūrah al-Mā‘īdah, in two volumes; the rest of the work was completed by a group of the Shaykh’s students.
2. Al-Ṣaḥīḥ al-Musnad min Aṣbāb al-Nuzūl (Authentic Musnad of the Reasons for Revelation): The Shaykh states that it was the “conjoining of the two great disciplines: The Tafsīr of the Book of Allah and the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allah” that prompted him to pen this work. He also states that “knowing the reason for the revelation of a verse aids one in understanding its meaning.”

Al-Aqidah (Creed):

3. Al-Shafā’ah (The Book of Intercession): In the introduction to the third edition, the Shaykh writes: “This book is considered a refutation of the innovators. The introduction contains an integration of [Qur’anic] verses and the distinction between the accepted and unaccepted intercession. Within the book there is also a refutation of those who seek intercession from those who do not possess it, like the Sufis, extreme Shi’ites, Rāfīdis, etc.”

5. Al-Ṣaḥīḥ al-Musnad min Dalā’il al-Nubuwwah (Authentic Musnad of the Proofs of Prophethood):
Concerning this book, the Shaykh stated: “Indeed, the study of the proofs of Prophethood increases the believer in faith, and would perhaps cause a person [to accept] Islam, if Allah wills.”

6. Rudūd Ahl al-‘Ilm alá al-Ṭā‘īnīna fī Ḥadīth al-Sihr (The Scholars’ Refutation of Those Who Reproach the Ḥadīth of Magic): This book repudiates those who reject the authentic tradition of our mother A’ishah, in which she relates the story of a spell being cast on the Messenger of Allah (صلى الله عليه وسلم). The Shaykh states: “When I was in the city of the Messenger of Allah, it reached me that some people were rejecting the veracity of the Ḥadīth of magic. I mentioned to the person who informed me [of their statement] that the narration is in Bukhārī and Muslim. He replied: ‘They still reject it.’” The Shaykh goes on to say that this is what prompted him to pen this clarification: “I do not claim that I am the one who authenticated [this tradition], for it was authentic before I came to be.”

7. Al-Makhraj min al-Fitnah (The Escape from Tribulation): This work refutes a number of the deviant sects and their false ideologies. The Shaykh also stresses the importance of the Muslim Ummah unifying upon the Book and Sunnah, and warns from the plot of al-Shayṭān to plant the seeds of separation and fanatical partisanship. In earlier editions of this treatise, the Shaykh made some remarks about the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. However, as al-Shaykh, al-‘Allāmah Rabī’ b. Hādī points out in his biography of our Shaykh: “He retracted his [earlier] opinion of the Saudi government in an article entitled ‘Bara’ah al-Dhimmah.’” [See Appendix III]

8. Ḥādhihi Da’watuna wa Aqīdatuna (This is our Call and Our Creed): This concise treatise is a clarification of the Shaykh’s da’wah in Yemen, covering matters of al-Tawḥīd, Divine Decree, love of the Prophet’s Companions, hatred for rhetoric and its people, etc. He states in the treatise: “Our call and creed is more beloved to us than our own selves, our possessions, and our children. We are not prepared to sell it for gold or silver. We state this so that no one will have any hopes of buying us with the dirham and dinar.” [See Appendix V]
9. Īdāḥ al-Maqāl fī Āshāb al-Zilzāl (Clarification of the Causes of Earthquakes): This treatise establishes the reasons for earthquakes, as found in the Book of Allah and the authentic Sunnah. It also refutes those from the heretics and disbelievers who attribute these occurrences to “natural disasters.”

Hadith and its Sciences:

10. Al-Ṣaḥīḥ al-Musnad mimmā laysa fī al- Al-Ṣaḥīḥayn: In the introduction, Shaykh Muqrī Bil states: “To me, reading the Ṣaḥīḥayn (of al-Bukhārī and Muslim) is the sweetest pleasure in the world; and when I open Bukhārī and read: ‘Abd Allah b. Yūsuf narrated to us: Mālik narrated to us...’ or I read Imām Muslim say: ‘Yaḥyá b. Yaḥyá narrated to us...’ I forget all the concerns of the dunya (world) and its problems.”

11. Al-Jāmī’ al-Ṣaḥīḥ mimmā laysa fī al-Ṣaḥīḥayn (Authentic Jāmī’ of Traditions That are not in the Ṣaḥīḥayn): The Shaykh arranged and chaptered this collection according the Ṣaḥīḥ of al-Imām al-Bukhārī.

13. Tuhfah al-Shabāb al-Rabbānī: This treatise is a refutation of al-Imam al-Shawkānī concerning the issue of masturbation.

14. Tahrīm Taṣwīr Dhawāt al-Arwāh, (The Prohibition of Depicting Animate Beings): In this work, the Shaykh states: “And from those fitan (tribulations) that the Muslims have been tested with are pictures. For indeed there is not a home absent of them. Rather, they have even reached the Bedouins in the ravine and on the mountain top. The reason for this is the Muslims’ neglectfulness of their Religion.”

15. Dhamm al-Mas‘alah (The Dispraiseworthy Nature of Begging)
ALL PRAISE IS DUE TO Allah, Lord of the worlds; and may the peace and blessings be upon our Prophet Muḥammad (صلى الله عليه وسلم), his family, and all his companions. I testify that nothing has the right to be worshipped besides Allah, and I testify that Muḥammad is His servant and Messenger.

To proceed: I have been reluctant for some time to speak about the subject I am now about to address. However, my resolve grew stronger, as I feared I might die before freeing myself from this.

It had been suggested to me more than once to seek permission from Amīr Aḥmad, the vice minister of Internal Affairs [in the Kingdom Saudi Arabia], to make Ḥajj and ‘Umrah. But I replied to the brothers that I have no need of that, and told myself that I would not allow myself to be belittled, since I was at ease in my own country among my students, and praise is for Allah.
Then, Allah decreed that I would become sick, and I received treatment in the hospital called ‘Mustashfá al-Thawrah’ in San‘ā. Afterward, the doctors decided that I needed to travel abroad. One of them said: “We advise you to travel to Saudi, because they are advanced in medical care.”

I would be going to Saudi, after having spoken out against them on more than one recording. And I agreed to go there because despite what lies between us, it is better than going to the adversaries of Islam. So after this, permission was sought on my behalf, and the noble Shaykh, al-‘Allāmah Muḥammad b. Ṣāliḥ al-‘Uthaymīn interceded for me, and his intercession was accepted for me to enter [the country] for treatment. Praise be to Allah; all my affairs were prepared by the Saudi Embassy.

Thereafter, we arrived in Riyāḍ and were received by officials from the Ministry of Internal Affairs, who had paid for a hotel for us, may Allah reward them with good. This was more than we had expected, and they were extremely generous to us. They then quickly had me admitted to the hospital. I witnessed their great generosity towards us. Our brothers used to sit with us—Allah be praised—and we would have knowledge-based discussions without touching upon any other matter.

And praise be to Allah, I am not one of those who repays good with bad, nor generosity with injury. Allah be praised; brothers would come and ask me about ahādīth, and I would question them in return. At that point, I was admitted to the hospital and stayed there for about ten days. They then said: “O Abū ‘Abd al-Rahmān, you must travel abroad.” So I said: “Khayran, Allah willing.” We arrived in Jeddah and were received in a hotel called ‘Funduq al-Hamrah.’ May Allah reward Amīr Nāyif, the Minister of Internal Affairs, with good, since we were received and treated so hospitably. May Allah grant him good.

After this, I requested an audience with him, and praise be to Allah, it was indeed a delightful meeting, a meeting with a man of intelligence. If you were to revise issues of knowledge with him, you would find that he has a good share of learning, praise be to Allah. He then said to me: “Whatever country you would like to go to, Allah willing, we will arrange everything you need there.’ But since I had no experience with that, I said to him: “You choose.” So he chose America, because they are more advanced than other countries in treating liver ailments.

Afterwards, I was amazed when I went to Makkah. In Yemen, I used to have about four guards by the door, and with that I still was not safe in my own home, neither during the day or night. However, when I was in Makkah, I stayed in a hotel called ‘Dār al-Azhar,’ and some nights I could not sleep, so I would go out to the Haram in the middle of the night by myself. And nothing can compare to the nīmah (blessing) of the repose and delight I felt. I would go out all by myself, and I would make tawāf, and ṣalāt and stay as long as I could, then return to the room.

This was a sense of security that I have not witnessed in any other country. The reason for it is Istiqāmah (steadfastness) upon the Book of Allah and the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allah (صلى الله عليه وسلم) by the authorities and many of the citizens. And our Lord spoke truthfully when He said in His Noble Book, concerning the people of the Scripture:
“And if they had only established the Tawrāh and the Injil and that which has (now) been sent down to them from their Lord, they would surely have gotten provision from above them and from beneath their feet” [al-Ḥādi'ah 5:66].

And He says:

“And if the people of the towns had only believed and had taqwa, we would have indeed opened up for them blessings from the heavens and the earth” [al-‘Arāf 7:96].

And He says about Quraysh:
“And they said: ‘If we were to follow the guidance with you, we would be snatched away from our land’ [al-Qaṣaṣ 28:57].

And He says:

أوَلَئَ كُنْتُمْ لَهُمْ حَرَّمًا عَادِمًا لَّيْتَوا إِلَيْهِ تُمَرُّنَّ سَكِيلًا شَيْئًا

“Have We not established for them a secure sanctuary, to which are brought fruits of all kinds, a provision from Us?” [al- Qaṣaṣ 28:57]

And He says:

أوَلَ يَزْعُمُ أَنَا جَعَلْتُ هَٰذَا حَرَّمًا عَادِمًا وَيَتَحْطُّ آنَابَاتٍ مِنْ حَوْلِهِمْ

“Have they not seen that We have made [Makkah] a secure sanctuary, while the people all around them are being snatched away?” [al-‘Ankabūt 29:67]

And He also said in His Noble Book:

«وَلَا أَسْتَقْبَلْنَاهُمْ عَلَى الْطَرْيَٰقَةِ لَأَسْقَبْنَهُمْ مَا ظَلَّ مِنْهُمْ عَدَّٰلًا»

“And if they had only remained upright upon the Path, We would have given them water (rain) in abundance” [al-Jinn 72:16].

And our Lord spoke the truth when He said in His Noble Book:

«وَعَدَ الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا مُنَّا وَجَعَلْنَا الصَّلَيْحَٰتَ لَيْسَ لَهُمُ الْأَرْضَ صَحِيمًا لَّسْتَخْلِقَنَّهُمْ مَنْ قَبْلَهُمْ وَلَيْسَ بِهِمْ مَنْ أَعَطَىٰ اللَّهُ مِنْ قَبْلَهُمْ وَلَيْسَ لَهُمُ الْأَرْضَ مَعْدُودًا»

“But Allah has promised those amongst you who believe and work righteous deeds that He will indeed grant them authority in the earth, the way He gave authority to those before them. And He will establish for them their religion that He has chosen for them. And He will exchange their fear with security, so that they can worship Me and not ascribe any partners with Me” [al-Nūr 24:55].

And He says in His Noble Book:

“It is a great Grace and protection from Allah for the protection of the Quraysh. We cause the Quraysh caravans to set forth safe in winter and in summer. So, let them worship Allah, the Lord of this House, Who has fed them against hunger and has made them safe from fear” [Quraysh 106:1-4].

Thus, safety and security is a tremendous ni‘mah (blessing) from Allah, and its cause is al-Istiqamah (steadfastness) upon the Book of Allah and upon the Sunnah of Allah’s Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم). And as this country has upheld this Istiqamah, Allah established them, and all praise is due to Allah.

And we ask Allah to bestow upon them righteous advisors and to protect them from evil associates who beautify falsehood; and that they strive to associate with people of goodness and virtue, even if they were to hear from them some words that may be hard upon them. Because as it is said: ‘Your friend is the one who speaks the truth to you, (i.e. when you are in the wrong), and is not the yes-man; this one is your enemy.’

So we must praise Allah, just as it is obligatory upon the people of this country to praise Allah, for there are certain people in the country, perhaps, who are lecherous, who seek licentiousness. But may Allah reward the authorities with good. I saw in the newspaper that Amīr Nāyif was asked to allow women to run for office. He answered them: “Do you want that the men should remain in the house, and the women go out and handle things? No, don’t even bother trying it.” Also, he was asked to implement elections, and he said: “We have not seen it succeed in the neighboring countries; rather, those who succeed are the wealthy and influential.” And he spoke the truth. Moreover, [elections] came to us from the adversaries of Islam. The Human Rights Society was received by many people, despite what it is upon from falsehood: calling the ḥudūd (prescriptive punishments) barbaric, banning the Book and the Sunnah, and exchanging them with systems from the adversaries of Islam.

The Saudi government, may Allah give them success towards all good, only received [the Human Rights Society] on the condition that it comply with Islam and the Book [of Allah] and the Sunnah, and likewise [comply with] the establishment of the ḥudūd, as our Lord says in His Noble Book:

\begin{align*}
\text{\\textit{وَلَكُنُّ فِي الْقُصُاصِ حَيَّةً}} \end{align*}

“And in the establishment of the Qiṣāṣ (the Law of Equality in punishment) there is life for you” [al-Baqarah 2:179].
Yes, murder is infrequent in this country, theft as well. You can leave your car by the masjid or by your front door, and no thief or anything like that will come and take it. However, in other countries, you may leave it, and when you come out, you won’t see it. In fact, they might take a person’s car while he is still in it. So, this is the reason for the establishment of the ḥudūd. May Allah reward them with good.

And as you heard previously in the ayah, “And in the establishment of the Qiṣāṣ, there is life for you.” So if the thief knows that if he steals, his hand will be cut off, this will prevent him from stealing; and if the fornicator knows that he will be lashed if he is a virgin, or will be stoned if he is or has been married, then fornication will decrease. I am not saying that it would not exist, but it would be a rarity.

In addition to this, the formation the Committee of the Promotion of Virtue and the Prevention of Vice, for I read in the newspaper that King Fahd gave the Committee about three-hundred vehicles and said to them: “You are the committee of restraint, and you are responsible in front of Allah.” By doing this, they have done well by their country and themselves.

Indeed, it is an obligation upon every Muslim in all the Islamic lands to cooperate with this government, even if it be by uttering a good word about it. For certainly its enemies are many, both from within and without. There are also people of desires and libertines within it, but Allah suppressed them by establishing this blessed state, and all praise is due to Allah. So it is obligatory upon every Muslim to assist this government.

The Qiṣāṣ, as well as other ḥudūd, is a ni‘mah (blessing) from Allah upon the society. Some seek to criticize us if we establish a ḥadd from amongst the Ḥudūd of Allah, while they themselves completely wipe out nations. These ḥudūd are in actuality a benefit for both the individual and the society. As for the individual, then it is an expiation for him, as related in the Šahīḥayn, on the authority of ʿUbādah b. Ṣāmit. As for the society, then it is a protection for their property, blood, and honor. If you were to go out to the seashore or any other place, you would see that a man and his wife do not have to fear for themselves from anyone. Thus, these ḥudūd are of benefit, and when they were abandoned in many of the Islamic countries, its people were unable to combat theft, to combat crime, to combat intoxicants and drugs. The reason for this is leaving off the ḥudūd. Allah al-musta'ān.

Along with this, their building masājid in the Islamic and non-Islamic countries. However, I do advise them that if they build a masjid, then they should give it to Ahl al-Sunnah. Because if they give it to a Sūfī, he will insult them and base his sermons on disparaging them. Likewise, if they give it to a ḥizbī (partisan), then he will utilize it for ḥizbiyyah. So we advise them to hand over the masājid to Ahl al-Sunnah, who love this government and those who run it.

Next, we have the issue of what I previously wrote and said on recordings, of which I have been asked about more than once. I have instructed the brother who is responsible for printing my books not to allow any of my previous speech against Saudi to remain in them. Allah says in His Noble Book:
“Should the reward for good be anything else but good?” [al-Rahmān 55:60]

They have indeed been good to me and have treated me very generously. And we are not from those who return a good deed with an evil one. And this is from the favors of Allah.

Let me also say, no one has pushed me nor forced me to say this. Rather, I myself consider it an obligation to free myself from it.

Yes, I indeed spoke, and I do believe that I was wrongly expelled from the Kingdom. Yet, La ilāha illa Allah, how often have I been in arguments with people who make takfīr of the Saudi rulers and would say to them: “The Saudi government is not a disbelieving government.” And I used to teach lessons which did not touch upon any of these issues, praise be to Allah. But one must have patience and forgiveness. And since they—may Allah reward them with good—have pardoned me, I must do so as well.

Also, they give great importance to the affair of the Hajj pilgrims and the expansion of the Two Sacred Mosques, as the Messenger of Allah (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: “Whoever builds a masjid for the Sake of Allah, Allah will build for him the like of it in Jannah”\(^\text{36}\); and also their caring for the affairs of the Hajj pilgrims and preserving their safety by having security at the door of the Haram. Also, when the fires broke out recently, they began to provide non-flammable tents. So may Allah reward them with good, for they show the greatest of concern. When we were at Mina, the aircrafts would circle overhead in order to watch over the pilgrims. May Allah reward them with good for this care.

I say: if you were to read in the books of the early scholars and the history of Makkah, you would see that Abū Ṭāhir al-Qarmaṭī killed about thirty-thousand people in total, in the Haram and its surrounding areas. And you would find that in some years the pilgrims of Egypt were barred, and at other times the pilgrims of al-‘Irāq, and Yemen were excluded. However, when the Saudi government was established—Allah be praised—we find that they protected both friend and foe who came to make Ḥajj, and considered them the guests of al-Raḥmān, and their own guests as well. May Allah reward them with good.

They should be thanked for that, since no other government is able to perform this, but they are doing it, and praise is for Allah. [You find] the soldiers spread about, as well as the people in authority. May Allah reward them with good. And praise be to Allah, some of them wear official clothing and some do not, in order to observe the situation of the people, and all praise is for Allah. This is a niʿmah (blessing) from Allah upon these rulers.

I have written some of these incidents in my book Ilḥād al-Khumaynī fī Ard al-Ḥaramayn. By this, I mean the commotion that Ḥajj pilgrims underwent in the past. Al-Ḥākim Biʾamrillah al-ʿUbaydī, al-Bāṭinī dispatched one of his slaves [to the Kaʿbah], and he smote the black stone with a mace. He then stood by the black stone and killed whoever tried to stop him or grab him, while saying: “No Muḥammad and no ʿAlī!”—until two men from Yemen were able to kill him.
So, as it was said previously, it is obligatory upon each Muslim in every Islamic land to support this government, because Allah says in His Noble Book:

“And help one another in deeds of righteousness and taqwa, and do not help one another in deeds of sin and transgression” [al-Mā’idah 5:2].

And the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) has said: “The believer to another believer is like a building, one part of it strengthens the other,” which is agreed upon on the authority of Abū Mūsá. Also, the Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: “The likeness of the believers in their love, compassion, and mercy is like the body. If one part of it suffers, the rest of the body becomes affected with fever and sleeplessness.”

Also [from their virtues] is their honoring of the scholars. And this is what their father ‘Abd al-‘Azīz enjoined upon them. So they elevate the scholars and greatly respect them. However, there are also evil scholars who speak ill of the Saudi government and perhaps make takfir of them. So a distinction is necessary with regards to the people of knowledge: whoever is upon the correct creed of al-Tawhīd, then he should be respected, and whoever is upon innovated creeds or ḥizbiyyah, should not. These ḥizbis, O my brothers, are evil. They are preparing themselves to take over the government as soon as they are able. So it is imperative not to allow them do so, or to aid them in any of their falsehood, except to try to win them over, if it is believed that they will repent.

So their honoring of the scholars is one of their virtues and a good towards their country and their father (i.e. ‘Abd al-‘Azīz), who enjoined this upon them.

So may Allah reward them with good. They received us and treated us graciously, and they fulfilled our every need with respects to my treatment, etc. May Allah reward them with good for what they have done for us, and I ask Allah to bless them, to protect their country, to establish them, and to provide them with good and righteous advisors, since Allah says:
"O you who believe! Take not as your advisors those outside of your Religion, since they will not fail to do their best to corrupt you. They desire to harm you severely. Hatred has already appeared from their mouths, but what their breasts conceal is far worse. Indeed, We have made plain to you the Ayāt, if you understand” [Āli Imrān 3:118].

So, may Allah grant them good advisors and protect them from evil companions. For indeed the Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم) says: “The likeness of the good companion and the bad companion is the likeness of the seller of musk and the blacksmith. As for the seller of musk, then either you will buy some from him or he will give you some for free, or you will find from him a pleasant scent. As for the blacksmith, then either he will burn your clothes, or you will find from him a bad smell.”

However, the topic at hand is not to continue citing the ayāt and the ahādīth concerning the evil companion, nor the virtues of the good companion. Nevertheless, we advise them to sit with righteous companions who want good for them and the Islamic countries, since this country is considered the stronghold and place of refuge for all Muslims. And I praise Allah, for they have indeed welcomed many travelers from various countries. So we praise Allah, wallah al-musta‘ān.

Finally, I repeat that the reason for this statement is that I see it to be an obligation upon me to speak the truth. This is compulsory. For, by Allah, no material thing or any person has pushed me to do this. And praise be to Allah, I am not amongst those who are deceived by people’s speech; rather, I take from their actions, and I have seen praiseworthy and good actions here, so may Allah reward them with good. This is what moves me. Wallah al-musta‘ān.”
APPENDIX IV

THE FINAL DAYS

The noble brother Abū Ziyād Khālid Baqays relates: “I recall the night of the Shaykh’s trip to Germany. I was with him in the VIP section of the airport in Jeddah. We sat for a few minutes, then the Shaykh asked me: “Where is your car?” I told him that it was near the door of the lounge. “Let us go there and rest,” he said. I took the Shaykh by the hand and walked him to the car. He stretched out in the back seat and began reciting some lines of poetry, and he was in very good spirits. An employee came to inform us that the flight was about to take off. The Shaykh exited the vehicle repeating some verses of poetry. I bid him farewell at the exit of the lounge.

As my brothers know, the Shaykh went first to America for treatment, then returned to Saudi and Yemen, with the plan to go back to America to complete the treatment; however, they refused to give him a return visa, so the next choice was Germany. I would like to mention an anecdote here that I heard from the Shaykh. He said: “A woman ambassador from America came to Yemen and wanted to visit Dammāj. So when they arrived, I said: ‘Tell her to go to the women’s section, and the men to the men’s section.’ She was not pleased with this and became angry, swearing that no Salafi would enter America. I would later travel there.” The Shaykh then said—laughing: “It is upon her to expiate for her vow.”

When the Shaykh arrived in Germany, they found that his condition was so grave there was nothing they could do for him. With that, they advised the Shaykh to return to his land. The Shaykh sensed something from this and wrote his last will and testament in the hospital in Germany.

After several days, Šāliḥ b. Qāyid informed me of the Shaykh’s arrival, so I went to the airport to meet them. However, [when I arrived] they informed me that Shaykh was very ill and was taken to the hospital in an ambulance.
When I arrived at the hospital with one of the brothers, I asked about the Shaykh and was informed that he was in the emergency department. When I entered upon him, I found him there alone in the room. When he saw me and my companion, he called out in a loud voice: “Hayya Allah hādhihi al-wujuh (May Allah preserve these faces),” repeatedly, and began to cry. I felt as if the Shaykh realized that he had arrived in Saudi when he saw us. I took his hand and kissed it and his forehead. The Shaykh was elated to see us. At this time, one of his companions entered, and the Shaykh began to say: “I have wearied you with travel, and distanced you from your family.” Then the brothers left, and I sat with him, holding his hand and talking to him. Then, suddenly, he slipped into a coma.

I would visit him every day at the hospital while he was in the coma. On one occasion, I was there holding his hand and reading, when someone behind me gave salāms. I looked, and it was our Shaykh Rabī’ b. Hādī, who began to cry when he saw Shaykh Muqbil. This caused everyone in the room to cry. He supplicated for the Shaykh, then left.
The Shaykh's Death

A group of us were in the Shaykh's room around his bed, and he was still in his coma. Then, suddenly, he began to clench his teeth, his eyes fixed upward, and he passed away.

I want to take the opportunity here to caution from what some have circulated that during the Shaykh's burial, when we were in the graveyard, he raised his forefinger, uttered the testimony of belief, and smiled. All of this is false, and the Shaykh is not in need of such tales. His actions, Allah willing, testify to a good end. Perhaps some consider the clenching of his teeth a smile. This is incorrect, as I was standing directly in front of him, and I testify to what I saw. May Allah bestow Mercy upon him.\textsuperscript{41}
APPENDIX V

THIS IS OUR CALL AND OUR CREED

[1]: We believe in Allāh and His Names and Attributes, as they were mentioned in the Book of Allāh and in the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم), without tahrīf (distortion), nor ta‘wil (figurative interpretation), nor tamthīl (making a likeness), nor tashbīh (resemblance), nor ta‘āl (denial).

[2]: We believe that calling upon the dead and seeking aid from them, and similarly with the living, in that which no one besides Allāh is capable of, is Shirk with Allāh. Likewise, believing that charms and amulets can bring about benefit along with Allāh, or without Allāh is Shirk, and carrying them without that belief is superstition.

[3]: We take from the apparent meaning the Book and Sunnah, and we do not interpret anything except with an evidence from the Book and Sunnah requiring interpretation.
[4]: We believe that the Believers will see their Lord in the Hereafter, without inquiry into the modality. And we believe in the Intercession (al-Shafā’ah) and in the people of Tawḥīd being taken out of the Fire.

[5]: We love the Companions (رضي الله عنهم) of the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم), and we hate those who speak against them. We believe that to speak ill of them is to speak ill of the Religion, because they are the ones who conveyed it to us. And we love the Family of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) with love that is permitted by the Sharī‘ah.

[6]: We love the people of Hadīth and all of the Salaf of the Ummah from Ahl al-Sunnah.

[7]: We despise ‘ilm al-kalām (theological rhetoric, and we view it to be from amongst the greatest reasons for the division in the Ummah.

[8]: We do not accept anything from the books of the fiqh (jurisprudence), nor from the books of the tafsīr (exegesis), nor from the ancient stories, nor from the Sīrah (biography) of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم), except that which has been confirmed from Allāh or from His Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم). We do not mean that we have rejected them, nor do we claim that we are not in need of them. Rather, we benefit from the discoveries of our Scholars and the jurists and other than them. However, we do not accept a ruling, except with an authentic proof.

[9]: We do not write in our books, nor do we cover in our lessons, nor do we give sermons with anything except the Qur'ān and the authentic and authoritative hadith. And we detest what emanates from many books and admonishers in terms of the false stories and weak and fabricated aḥādīth.

[10]: We do not perform tafsīr upon any Muslim due to any sin, except Shirk with Allāh, or the abandonment of the Prayer, or apostasy. We seek refuge with Allāh from that.

[11]: We believe that the Qur'ān is the Speech of Allāh, it is not created.

[12]: We hold co-operation with any Muslim upon the truth to be obligatory and we declare ourselves free in front of Allāh from the calls of al-Jāhiliyyah (pre-Islāmic times of ignorance).
[13]: We do not deem it correct to revolt against the Muslim rulers as long as they are Muslims, nor do we feel that revolutions bring about rectification. Rather, they corrupt the society.

[14]: We hold that this multiplicity of present day parties is a reason of the division of the Muslims and their weakness.

[15]: We hold that the da‘wah (call) of the Ikhwān al-Muslimīn is not an upright and righteous da‘wah that brings about the rectification of the society. Indeed, their da‘wah is political, not religious. It is also a da‘wah of innovation, because it is a call to making unknown allegiance and da‘wah of fitnah (trial, tribulation) founded upon innovation, and all of it is built upon innovation.

[16]: We advise the brothers who work amongst them to abandon them, until nothing of their time is afforded to that which does not benefit Islam and the Muslims. And it is upon the Muslim that his priority be to Allāh in aiding Islam and the Muslims upon the hand of any Muslim under any Jamā‘ah.

[17]: We restrict our understanding of the Book of Allāh and of the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (سَلَّمُوْلَيْلَهُ وَسَلَّمَ). to the understanding of the Salaf of the Ummah from the Scholars of ḥadīth, not the blind-followers of their individuals. And we know that there are those who claim Salafīyyah, yet Salafīyyah is free from them, since they bring to society that which Allāh has prohibited.

[18]: We believe that politics is a part of the Religion, and those who attempt to separate the Religion from politics are only attempting to destroy the Religion and to spread chaos. Likewise, what has been spread in some of the Islāmic countries that, ‘The Religion is for Allāh, but the state is for the people,’ is a call of jāhiliyyah. Rather, everything must be for Allāh.

[19]: We believe there will be no honor or victory for the Muslims until they return to the Book of Allāh and to the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (ṣallalla‘alā ‘llāhi `wasi‘tu ‘llah).

[20]: We hate the present day parties: the apostate Communist party, and the apostate Ba‘thi party, and the apostate Nāṣiri, and the apostate Socialist party, and the apostate Rāfidi party. And we believe that all of the people are divided into two parties: the party of Allāh, and they are those who establish the pillars of Islām and the pillars of īmān (faith). And there is the part of Shayṭān, and they are those who wage war against the Sharī‘ah of Allāh.

[21]: We oppose those who divide the Religion up into trivialities and important issues. And we know that this is a destructive da‘wah.

[22]: We oppose those who belittle the knowledge of the Sunnah and say that this is not the time for it. Likewise, we oppose those who belittle acting upon the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (ṣallallāhu a‘ṣallam).

[23]: We hold that the most important affairs must be given precedence over others. So it is obligatory upon the Muslims that they give importance to ‘aqidah (creed), then to thwart the efforts of the Communists and the Ba‘th party. So this cannot occur, except by holding fast to the Book and the Sunnah.

[24]: We hold that no Jamā‘ah has the ability of facing the enemies, whether it be the Rāfi‘ī, or the Shī‘ite, or the Šūfī, or the Sunnī; up until they have true brotherhood and unity upon this ‘aqidah.

[25]: We oppose those who are arrogant and claim that the callers to Allāh are Wahhabiyyah agents. And we know that their filthy intention is that they wish to place an obstruction between the common-folk and the people of knowledge.

[26]: Our da‘wah and our ‘aqīdah are more beloved to us than our own selves, our wealth and our offspring. So we are not prepared to part with it for gold, nor silver. We say this so that no one may have hope of buying out our da‘wah, nor should anyone think that it is possible for them to purchase it from us for dinār, nor dirham. Since the politicians already know this about us, they have despaired or buying it from us with granted positions or wealth.

[27]: We love the governments in accordance to what they have of goodness, and we hate them for what they have of evil. And we do not permit revolting against them, except if we have seen clear disbelief from them about which we have a proof from Allāh, with the condition that we are capable of that, and that there not be any civil strife between the Muslims and their opponents. Since the rulers portray those who revolt against them as spies causing corruption. And thereupon, other conditions come in, refer to our other books.
[28]: We accept direction and advice from wherever it comes and we know that we are students of knowledge, we are correct sometimes and we are incorrect at other times. We are ignorant at times and knowledgeable at times.

[29]: We love the present-day Scholars of the Sunnah and hope to benefit from them and regret the passing away of many of them.

[30]: We do not accept a fatwá, except from the Book of Allāh and the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (ṣallallāhu ‘alaihi wa sallam).

[31]: We oppose those who visit graves and other than them from amongst those who allege heresy in praise.

[32]: We oppose the calls of jāhiliyyah, such as nationalism and Arab-nationalism. We oppose them and we name them calls of jāhiliyyah and we hold that they are reasons for the downfall of the Muslims.

[33]: We are awaiting the reviver that Allāh revives this Religion with. Abū Dāwud (d.257H) – رحمَهُ رَحْمَاتُ اللَّهِ – related in his Sunan from Abū Hurayrah (rta), from the Prophet (ṣallallāhu ‘alaihi wa sallam) who said, “Indeed, Allāh send at the head of every one hundred years a reviver for this Ummah who revives its Religion.”

[34]: We firmly believe in the misguidance of the one who rejects the aḥādīth pertaining to the Mahdī, the Dajjāl (anti-Christ) and the descent of ‘Īsā Ibn Maryam (عليه السلام). And we do not mean the Mahdī of Rāfiḍah. Rather, we mean the leader from the Family of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم), from the people of the Sunnah filling up the earth with justice and fairness, just as it was filled with oppression and injustice before. And we say that he is from Ahl al-Sunnah, because cursing the noble Companions is not from justice.

[35]: These are glimpses into our ‘aqīdah and our da‘wah. And mentioning them with their proofs would lengthen the book. Indeed, I have mentioned their proofs in al-Makhraj min al-Fitnah. So if one has any objection to this, then we are prepared to accept advice if it is truthful, and to refute it if it is erroneous, and to avoid it if it is stubborn rejection. And Allāh knows best.

So let it be known that this has not fully covered our da‘wah and our ‘aqīdah, since our da‘wah is from the Book and the Sunnah, to the Book and the Sunnah, and our ‘aqīdah is likewise. And Allāh is sufficient for us, and He is the best of those who are trusted. And there is no might, nor power, except with Allāh.⁴²
NOTES

1 One of the oldest and largest tribes in Yemen; the name derives from their forefather Bakīl b. Hamdān.
2 The capital city of the Sa’dah Governorate in north-western Yemen
3 A village in the Sa’dah Governorate
4 Located in al-Šafra, a district of the Sa’dah Governorate
5 Lieutenant-Colonel Ibrāhīm al-Ḥamūdī was the leader of a military coup d’État in Yemen that overthrew the regime of President ‘Abd al-Raḥmān al-Iyānī on June 13, 1974. After the revolt, al-Ḥamūdī was President of the Military Command Council that governed the country. He was assassinated on October 11, 1977.
6 Also known as “Imām Hādi Mosque.” The masjid is located in the Sa’dah Governorate and was built around 897 CE. It was named after Yahyā b. al-Ḥusayn who was nicknamed “al-Hādi ilā al-Ḥaqq” (Guide to the truth) by the Zaydī branch of the Shi’ites. He was one of the founders of the Zaydī state.
8 Entitled al-Īdāh ‘alá al-Miṣbāḥ by Aḥmad b. Yahyā Ḥābis al-Sa’dī
A treatise of Arabic grammar and inflection, written by Abū ‘Abd Allah b. Dāwud, also known by Ibn Ajurrūm. He was a scholar of Fiqh and Arabic grammar. He died in 723 Hijrī.

A civil war in Northern Yemen fought between royalist supporters of the Mutawakkilite Kingdom and the supporters of the Yemen Arab Republic. The war began in 1962 with a coup d'état led by ‘Abd Allah al-Sallāl and ended eight years later in 1980 with a republican victory after dethroning King Muḥammad al-Badr.

Shaykh ‘Abd al-‘Azīz b. ‘Abd Allah b. Muḥammad b. ‘Abd al-Azīz al-Subayyil, from the Ḥanbalī scholars of Najd. He was born in the area of Qaṣīm in 1321 Hijrī and died on the 21st of Ṣafr 1412 Hijrī.

Explanation of al-Ājurrūmiyyah by Muḥammad Muḥyī al-Dīn ‘Abd al-Ḥamīd Collected by Muslim in his Ṣaḥīḥ (no. 2699), on the authority of Abū Hurayrah.

See Ṣaḥīḥ al-Jāmi‘ (no. 3572) of Shaykh al-Albānī

Compiled by Muḥammad Fu‘ād ‘Abd al-Bāqī in which he collects the narrations that are agreed upon by the two Imāms, al-Bukhārī and Muslim, in their Ṣaḥīḥayn. The book contains a total of two-thousand and six (2,006) Prophetic traditions.
19 Juhaymān b. Muḥammad b. Sayf al-‘Uṭaybī, a Kharijite insurgent who on November 20, 1979, led hundreds of dissidents in a siege of the Ḥaram in Makkah. After more than two weeks, Saudi Special Forces took back the masjid and ended the siege. On January 9, 1980, Juhaymān was publicly executed in Makkah.

20 Shaykh Muqbil was asked: “Who is a Wahhābī? Have they in fact changed the Religion and come with a new way?” He answered: “As for [for the term] Wahhabism, it is an ascription from the plot of the adversaries of Islam, since the call of Muḥammad b. ʿAbd al-Wahhāb was the call of pure Islam, and the adversaries of the Islam hate to see this pure call. Shaykh Muḥammad b. ʿAbd al-Wahhāb and his students obliged themselves to follow the Book and the way of the Prophet…There were those who worshipped Zayd b. al-Khaṭṭāb, and those who slaughtered [in the name of] date trees and believed in them. There were also people who fell into innovations and superstitions. Then, praise be to Allah, Muḥammad b. ʿAbd al-Wahhāb stood up against this, and was aided by the family of Saʿūd. It should be known that we, as callers to Allah, do not accept being called Wahhābī, as we do not blindly follow Muḥammad b. ʿAbd al-Wahhāb, and if we were to blindly follow, we would have blindly followed Abū Bakr or ʿUmar or ʿUthmān or ʿAlī.” [Ijābah al-Sāʿīl (p. 52)]

35 He states: “Certainly, from the greatest calamities to befall the Muslims is the division of the callers to Allah. Indeed, the opponents of Islam are determined to break them up. Rather, what is worse still is that they are persistent in pitting one against the other.

If only the callers to Allah would reflect and return to the history of their Salaf, they would find that they differed in some [subsidary] issues, but that was not a reason to attack one another. They understood certain matters differently, as they did with the statement of the Messenger of Allah: “Whoever believes in Allah and the Last Day, then he should not pray al-‘Asr until he reaches Banū Qurayţah.” Some of them applied a literal interpretation to the hadith and did not pray until they reached Banū Qurayzah. Others took it to mean that they should hasten to Banū Qurayzah, but when they feared the time for al-‘Asr would expire, they prayed on the way, and the Prophet did not reprimand either party.

Rather, what is even greater is that the Prophet stated that if the mujtahid makes a ruling and is mistaken, he receives a reward. He stated: “If a judge makes a ruling and is correct, he receives two rewards, and if he is incorrect, then one.”

The Salaf differed in matters for which there was more than one text, like their differing over the various wordings of the Tashahhud. One choosing one wording, another choosing a different one. Yet, they never found fault in one another for doing so.

The differing that the Salaf rejected was al-Tadād (opposition), when a person rejects an authentic hadith without explanation.

The Salaf did not divide into groups and schisms, each group taking an ignorant leader who misguides others. Instead, they were one Ummah, unifying and separating for the Sake of Allah, just as their Lord has directed them in His Statement: “Indeed, your Wali is none but Allah, His Messenger, and the believers—those who perform the prayers, give the Zakāt, and they are the Rakīūn (those who bow down to Allah in prayer)” [al-Mā‘īdah 5:55].

Certainly, we do not find the differing of worldly people a strange thing, but what breaks the heart is the differing of the callers to Allah, fulfilling their adversaries’ desire to see them divided.
We do not call on any group to leave off their opinions for the opinions of others. Rather, we say: let each group leave off their opinions and refer back to the Book of Allah and the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allah. As Allah said, “And in whatsoever you differ, the decision thereof is with Allah” [al-Shūrā 42:10].

And His statement: “O you who believe, obey Allah and His Messenger and those in authority over you. And if you differ in anything, refer it back to Allah and His Messenger, if you believe in Allah and the Last Day. That is better and more suitable for final determination” [al-Nisā 4:59].

Indeed, I am aware that a number of the followers of the groups only desire the truth, and if they understood that this division was not permissible in the Religion, they would have abandoned their blind, fanatical leadership.

He says later: “Certainly, this division and partisanship has weakened the Muslims, and we have all witnessed this. Rather, I swear by Allah that we are fearful that this partisanship will end up as al-Ṭāghūtiyyah if some of the partisans unite and divide solely for the sake of their group, and call only for its sake.” [See al-Makhraj min al-Fitnah, Sanā: Maktabah al-San’a al-Athariyyah, 1422 AH/2002 CE, pp. 5–6, and 7.]
